TESTIMONY IS COMPLETED IN SUIT OVER $35,000 BOND ISSUE.

Only Two Witnesses Are Called During Entire Hearing and Spectators Are Few.

CASE ADJOURNED TILL LATER

Judge Van Swearingen Leaves on Vacation Tomorrow and Arguments Will Be Made When He Returns. Twelve in Court Room Today.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, August 5.—The testimony is all in for the suit of J. Duggan against the Borough of Connellsville to prevent the issue of $35,000 refunding bonds. The case was resumed this morning. Clerk A. O. Bixler of the Connellsville Town Council was the only spectator, while he wasn't on the witness stand, and the court room was occupied by Judge Van Swearingen, a stenographer, three tipstaves, counsel for plaintiff and defense, the plaintiff and the two witnesses. The 150 militant city leaguers Higbee promised to have on hand to help fight the bond issue did not appear.

Grouped around the table of the plaintiff were J. Duggan, whose name appears as bringing the suit, J. Duggan, Junior, his son and associate counsel, and Attorney Edward C. Higbee father of the Civic—no, City League. Borough Solicitors S. Ray Shelby and J. Kirk Renner occupied the other table, with Chairman W. H. Thomas of the Finance Committee advising them. While not on the stand Clerk Bixler sat beyond the railing in the large space usually occupied by the witnesses and spectators. He looked lonesome. Thomas and Bixler were the only witnesses called throughout the entire proceedings.

The first witness called was Clerk A. O. Bixler. He stated that he had the auditors' report for the year 1908 clipped out of a newspaper. From this he read the amount of indebtedness for 1908, which totalled $165,094.06. Of this amount $60,000 was for sewer bonds. The auditors' report for the old borough of Connellsville for the year ending March, 1909, was read. The total indebtedness then was $168,509.38. Of this amount $60,000 was for sewer bonds. For the fiscal year 1909 the bonded indebtedness was increased $47,500. Attorney Higbee then asked what was done with the proceeds of this bond issue. Clerk Bixler stated this money was used in paying off certificates of indebtedness and other obligations. He stated that the certificates of the Gamewell Fire Alarm Company had been issued in 1906, at the time the contract was made, and that the Gamewell certificates and those of the Combination Ladder Company were not paid out of the refunding bonds. He added that the total of all debts incurred since the consolidation for the reissuing of certificates for the Gamewell and other obligations, did not include the sewer bonds.

Attorney Shelby took up the cross-examination, which was brief. Clerk Bixler did not bring along his books, having understood that only the total net indebtedness was desired. Solicitor Shelby stated that it was desired to prove that in the year 1907 part of the indebtedness was incurred by a vote of the people. Attorney Higbee stated that these figures could be read into the testimony when secured.

Clerk Bixler then read the net indebtedness for the fiscal year ending in March, 1907, $152,092.23; 1908, $122,504.69; 1909, $109,280.45. Clerk Bixler was asked if he knew what the total indebtedness of the old borough of New Haven was at the time of the consolidation. He was unable to answer this question. The plaintiff then admitted that the total indebtedness was $115,000, composed of $12,000 refunding bonds; $2,000 paving bonds and a certificate of indebtedness for $500. Of this amount the paving bonds were authorized by a vote. The refunding bonds were issued by Council without a vote of the people. Clerk Bixler stated that he had not been Borough Clerk ever since the consolidation, but since that time had become aware that there were some bills owed by the old borough of New Haven which were not included in the auditors' report. Attorney Higbee objected to this question because it was contrary to the sworn report of the auditors. The objection was overruled. Clerk Bixler continued, stating that there was a bill against New Haven which Council thought had been paid. It amounted to $1,227.32, due the Connellsville Water Company. At the same time there was a bond for $500 held by the Second National Bank. This was paid off after consolidation.

On a question from Higbee Clerk Bixler said the paving bonds were authorized by an election in New Haven and that the net indebtedness of that borough for 1907 was obtained after deducting resources to the amount of $41,589.37, composed of uncollected taxes and outstanding paving accounts. He said the tax levy for Connellsville for 1910 is 13½ mills, the West Side 10¾, Greenwood and Snydertown, 8¾ and that in 1909 the tax levy in Connellsville was 13 mills, the West Side, 10 mills.

Higbee then offered in evidence the property rolls, showing the assessed valuations of Connellsville prior to the consolidation, as follows: 1906, $3,357,680; 1907, $3,616,835; 1908, $3,759,180; 1909, $3,811,774. The consolidated boroughs, for 1910 showed a valuation of $4,908,331. At this point Clerk Bixler left the stand.

Chairman W. H. Thomas of the Finance Committee of Town Council was then called by Higbee. Chairman Thomas stated he was a member of the New Haven Town Council four years prior to the consolidation. He stated that a voucher had been drawn for the payment of the water company's bill but he did not know until two months ago that it was still afloat. In the auditors report he said the various expenditures were shown but he did not know whether it included this bill or not. He said the $500 bond spoken of by Clerk Bixler was issued in 1888 and held by the Second National Bank of Connellsville, being due in 1898. He denied that the money left in the New Haven treasury at the time of consolidation was paid into the treasury of the consolidated borough, but was used to lift two bonds of the old paving issue from the Yough bank and the lifting of a $500 certificate.

Solicitor Shelby asked if there were any debts of New Haven that the consolidated borough would have to pay. Thomas replied in the negative. Higbee asked if there was enough money in the New Haven treasury at the time of consolidation to pay all the bills. Thomas stated there was. The plaintiff rested.

Chairman Thomas was the first witness for the defense. Under questioning by Solicitor J. Kirk Renner he went over about the same ground as covered during Higbee's examination. Clerk Bixler was recalled. He was asked minor questions regarding some of the bills paid. Higbee objected. Attorney Renner stated these questions were for the purpose of showing that those who were responsible for the consolidation immediately proceeded to violate the agreement and to show that the plaintiff, Duggan, was a member of the Council and in some instances responsible for the motions made to that end.

Renner stated it was correct that letters patent were issued by the State to the new borough, but the contention of the defense is that the people of Connellsville voted strongly in favor of issuing the bonds and they have a right to the issue in order to save themselves money. Judge Van Swearingen sustained the objection on the grounds that the manner of putting the questions was improper.

The hearing was then adjourned until a date to be set later when the arguments will be made.

Three New Cases of Typhoid Fever Reported Today

Three new cases of typhoid fever were reported to Health Officer Allen Hyatt this morning. Two cases were discharged from quarantine, making an actual gain of only one new case. The three new cases would have run the total in the borough to eight, but the discharged patients, who have recovered, bring the total to six.

Another case was reported in the home of John M. Snyder of North Pittsburg street, making three in all. The little daughter of A. H. Manheimer of East Apple street is afflicted with the disease while the third case is in the home of an Italian family on the West Side.

Hyatt reports that no new cases have yet been returned from the townships over which he has jurisdiction. There are now 15 cases of fever in his territory.

SHOVEL AND HOE WEAPONS

Mrs. Jackson Myers and Mrs. Elizabeth Myers Show Their Nerve at Ohiopyle by Refusing to Flee Before the Reptile's Onslaughts.

Special to The Courier.

OHIOPYLE, Aug. 5.—One of the largest rattlers seen in this vicinity for a number of years was killed after a battle against two women on the Jackson Myers place near here Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Jackson Myers and Mrs. Elizabeth Myers, the latter of Dickerson Run, entered into armed combat against the reptile and came out best.

Mrs. Myers and sons, Donald and Dalton, and Mrs. G. A. Lint and son, Clair, all of Dickerson Run, camped for two weeks at Ohiopyle. They went Wednesday to the home of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Myers, nearby. While on the front porch Mrs. Lint heard a peculiar noise, like that of a locust, coming from beneath the porch. A board was torn up and out sprang the monster rattlesnake, his rattles humming a battle tune. Mrs. Lint and the others retired to the house, leaving the two Mrs. Myers to face the music. It wasn't a pleasant tune, either, for the snake was angry over being disturbed. Mrs. Elizabeth Myers took a long handled shovel while Mrs. Jackson Myers selected a hoe. After several futile efforts to administer a blow in some vital spot, Mrs. Jackson Myers finally pinioned the snake with the shovel while Mrs. Elizabeth Myers amputated the head of the reptile with the sharp edge of the hoe.

Mrs. Elizabeth Myers returned to Dickerson Run with the rattles as a souvenir of the battle.

Balto. & Ohio Company Sued for Violation of Hours of Service Law.

For the first time in the history of the United States District Court, United States Attorney John E. Jordan has brought suit against a Western Pennsylvania railroad, asking for the recovery of a penalty for the alleged violation of the "hours of service" act, the Baltimore & Ohio being made the defendant.

The suit was brought at the suggestion of Attorney General George W. Wickersham, and asks for $2,000 damages for four alleged violations of the act, the penalty of each being $500. The papers in the case have been served.

It is charged that the defendant required and permitted certain of its employes to remain on duty, for a period longer than 16 consecutive hours, and that they again went on duty without having remained off duty for at least 10 consecutive hours in direct violation of the act. In two instances cited, employes engaged as engineer and fireman, respectively, in moving interstate traffic, remained on duty for an aggregate of 16 hours in a period of 24 consecutive hours, and again went on duty, without first having remained off duty at least eight hours, as required by the act.

The alleged violations occurred generally between Glenwood and Connellsville, during the month of April, 1910, and Mr. Jordan's attention was called to the matter shortly afterward.

Mr. Jordan stated that the act was passed to promote the safety of employes and travelers upon railroads, by limiting the hours of service of the employes. It became a law, March 1, 1907, and went into effect a year later.

One of the provisions of the act declares that it is unlawful to require or permit an employe, subject to the act, to remain on duty longer than 16 consecutive hours. He must then have at least 10 consecutive hours' rest. If an employe has been on duty for an aggregate of 16 hours in 24 consecutive hours, he must remain off duty at least eight hours, before again going on duty.

Progress of Western Maryland Work During Past Week Has Been Brisk.

Progress on Western Maryland construction during the past week is very notable particularly in the vicinity of the following places: Ohiopyle, Bidwell, Confluence, Pinkerton and Garrett to the west and from Glade City on the east towards Sand Patch and Frostburg.

One new section was opened up last week, that of Contractor Louis J. D'Isa, of Rochester, N. Y., who commenced about ten days ago to clear up the right of way on the line between Confluence and Fort Hill and at the present writing is advancing with rapid strides. The first of this week he had a 65 ton steam shovel, three dinkeys and six cars of trucks and other equipment unloaded near Haynesville from the Whites creek branch of the B. & O. railroad and he is already well started on in grading and building false work for filling in the depressions. This section is one of the difficult ones along the line being through a wild, unbroken part of the country, where ravines, gorges, hanging rock and every other obstacle of nature must be overcome. On the line east of the Casselman through what is known as "Owl Hill," most of these difficulties have to be encountered but from the energetic way in which Mr. D'Isa and his efficient corps of foremen are taking hold the short time they have been on the work it looks as if they would make rapid progress.

Nay & McDonad, the concrete contractors have completed one pier on the Casselman bridge at Harnedsville and the other three are advancing rapidly. The weather has been unusually favorable to them as the water in the Casselman river is now very low, little pumping is required, nor any other obstacle to retard their progress.

Patton & Richardson got in a steam shovel to replace the one that was smashed up by running down Markle ton hill week before last.

A lot of large sewer pipes has been unloaded near Habel Hollow, west of Meyersdale near the borough limit. Over 30 men are at work and machinery is being oiled up and put in order for work. Preparations are being made to lay the foundation of the culvert where the tracks will cross the hollow, and digging at this place for the foundation is well under way. This is the first work of any consequence that has been done near the west side of the borough. A number of teams are at work hauling all kinds of material from the B. & O. railroad yards so that it can be well said that at last railroad building within a stone throw of one of the most important towns along the line is in active operation.

Girl Elopes While Another Suitor Waits In Parlor of Home

LATROBE, Aug. 5.—Friends of the young people here have just learned the details of the wedding of Miss Maud C. Brown of Youngstown and Harry J. Eicher of this city, which took place last Monday at Cumberland, Md. It was quite a romantic affair and the relatives of the bride were outwitted by the young people in an original manner.

Miss Brown, now Mrs. Eicher, made her home with her uncle, Thomas H. Dalton, proprietor of the Hotel Dalton, at Youngstown. Her relatives did not favor the Latrobe man, but threw their influence toward another suitor. Last Sunday evening this favored swain called on the young lady and she was entertaining him in the parlor when a servant came to the door. She said she wanted to speak to Miss Brown and the girl, after a word or two, left the room, telling her caller she would be back in a minute.

Instead of doing so, Miss Brown went a short distance down the street and entered an automobile which young Eicher had in waiting. They motored to Mt. Pleasant, then went by car to Connellsville and from there to Cumberland, where they were at once married.

In the meantime the favored suitor waited in the parlor until his patience was exhausted. Inquiries were then made and the elopment was finally discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Eicher are now on a honeymoon tour. On their return they will make their home at Latrobe.

Retirement of Fred Ehrenfield on the Pennsylvania

Wednesday evening the home of Frederick Ehrenfeld, of East Pittsburg street, Greensburg, was the scene of a great surprise to the host when the foremen of the Southwest Branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company assembled to bid him a farewell, upon his retirement from active service as supervisor of the Southwest Branch.

In behalf of these men, W. Scott Lane, in well chosen words, presented to Mr. Ehrenfeld, a handsome Flemish oak chest, containing fifty-six pieces of table silver, each piece engraved "F. E." On the lid of the chest a silver plate bore the inscription, "Presented to Frederick Ehrenfeld by the Foremen of Supervisor's Division 11, July 31, 1910."

Mr. Ehrenfeld has been for fifty years in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, first entering the service in 1861. For thirty years he has held the position as supervisor on different divisions. In consideration of this great experience and long service, he has been appointed to more general duties with headquarters in Pittsburg. Mr. Ehrenfeld is deservedly popular with railroad men and general regret is expressed over his departure from his associates. He is succeeded by L. S. Seymour, of the Tyrone division.

SUMMER TRIPS.

Everybody Should Have a Change of Scene at Least Once a Year.

Have you had a vacation or are you going to take one? Every man and woman should have an outing some time during the year. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy—wears him out before his natural time. To enjoy a vacation thoroughly one must take a little trip—have a complete change of scene and people. This, of course, costs money, but not so much money that it cannot be easily saved by men and women of ordinary means. If you haven't the wherewithal to take a vacation this year, why not begin right now to save for next year? Just a little saved every pay day and deposited in the First National Bank of Connellsville at 4 per cent interest will provide a handsome sum for a trip next spring or summer. One dollar opens an account.

Fairmont Loses Big Steel Plant; Moving to Texas

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Aug. 5.—The Fairmont Rail Company has sold its steel mill here to the United States Iron & Steel Company of Texas. The purchasing company is locating a group of mills at San Jacinto City, a new city that is situated between Houston and Galveston on the United States Ship Channel. The mill purchased here will be dismantled and taken to New York and from there it will be shipped to Galveston and from there to its final destination.

The mill when installed at San Jacinto will reroll rails, converting them into rounds, flats, cotton ties and reinforced concrete bars. The old rails are broken into three lenths, reheated and run through a set of splitters. The pieces are split into three parts, the head, the web and the tram. The head of the rail is manufactured into rounds and the web into flats and cotton ties. The tram is manufactured into small angles and other small sections.

The representatives of the purchasing company said that this is only one of the many mills that will be located in San Jacinto. The claim for their town an abundance of material for the manufacture of iron and steel products with plenty of fluxing material and cheap fuel and with the best shipping facilities to be found in the entire country.

The United States Iron & Steel Company of Texas is backed by capitalists of Pittsburg, Syracuse, N. Y., and Houston, Texas. It was Pittsburg capital that discovered valuable deposits of brown hematite iron ore in great quantities. The ore is said to be better than that which is shipped from the lake beds. The analysis, it is claimed, shows a yield of 52 per cent per ton.

Holeproof Hose

What Our Six Months' Guarantee Really Means

Common Hose

Holeproof Hosiery is guaranteed to be as free from holes at the end of six months as it is the day you buy it. We give you this guarantee in writing so if any holes appear in six months you receive new hosiery free of charge.

Common hosiery has no such guarantee. It costs you just as much as "Holeproof," but at the end of six months it is worthless. You spend hours darning it when for no extra expense you can have "Holeproof" and do no mending. Why not have the best?

FAMOUS Holeproof Hosiery FOR MEN WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Insist on seeing the original Holeproof trade-mark. Many have imitated the guarantee but none have equaled the quality.

The makers pay 63 cents a pound for Egyptian and Sea Island cotton, but common hosiery is made from cotton at 12 cents a pound.

"Holeproof" uses 3-ply yarn in the body and 6-ply in the heels, toes and knees. Ordinary hosiery uses 2-ply throughout, yet costs you just as much as "Holeproof."

Stop in at our store and examine the hose. See how stylish and comfortable it is—soft, smooth and neat fitting. Learn the facts today.

GREAT BATTLE IS IMMINENT.

Honduran Rebels Are Closing in on City of Ceiba.

REFUGEES AT U. S. CONSULATE

Great Excitement Prevails in Honduras City, to Which Place Government Rushes Troops—Serious Engagement Expected.

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 5.—News received here from Ceiba, Honduras, says:

A general alarm has just been sounded and all the government troops are rushing to quarters. We expect to see the town attacked any minute. The British cruiser Scylla is entering the harbor. The situation here is one of great uncertainty and anxiety and the American consulate is filled with refugees. Among them are Dr. Layton, the United States hospital surgeon, his wife and mother, General Francesco Matuke and General Gallardo.

The government has formally demanded of the American consul that he surrender Dr. Matuke, but he has refused. It is reported to be the intention of the government to force him to give up a large amount of money for his ransom, as he is wealthy and stands high in the community.

There are altogether about 2,000 government troops in and around Ceiba and entrenchments are being thrown up three miles east of town. It is expected that when the attack on Ceiba takes place there is where the real fight will come off and as both sides are well prepared, it will be a serious engagement.

The governor of this department will lead the government troops in person. The governor desires to avoid any fighting inside the city, so that no foreigners will be hurt and outside complications avoided.

Business is at a standstill here and the streets are all guarded while mounted men patrol the beach.

There is a well authenticated report that an engagement is about to take place about seven miles east of here on the coast between the government troops and a large revolutionary force under General Christmas, who is attacking the government forces from barges and boats anchored in the offing. He is said to be using rapid-fire guns handled by Americans, and the report is that he has fifty such experts with him.

ALVERTON.

ALVERTON, Aug. 5.—The Alverton Church of God S. S. left for Oakford Park on a special car which left Church street at 8:30. Superintendent W. A. Byers had his hands full with some 200 youngsters whose eagerness to get to the park kept the older ones on the lookout lest they would get into danger.

In the park there was a scrumptuous repast spread by the good dames and their husbands and beaux showed their appreciation of their efforts by doing justice to the delicate viands.

It was Church of God day at the park. The Mt. Pleasant schools were present some 500 strong, and those with the Alverton school made the park lively with the jubilations of the youngsters.

The McClain birthday party was a decided success. There were some 50 children invited and the most of them were present. They brought little gifts and then in their childish way partook of a dainty lunch and then engaged in many innocent games. Mr. and Mrs. McClain were pleased with their little guests who came to do honor to their little daughter Gertrude on her sixth birthday.

On Sabbath evening next, Rev. W. B. Guyer will preach a special sermon to men, and all the Alverton men and in the community are cordially invited to be present.

During the week the Trout's had a jovial reunion near Greensburg. A number of people gathered in at the home of John Trout, a respected gentleman of the County, and paid their honor to him. Those from Alverton were Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Trout, Mrs. Jennie Trout, and son Walter, and others from near town. They had a good time renewing old acquaintances and talking over other days.

Chas. Hiles and family have again come back to town. They moved on a wagon from Younkin here.

All hope of the Frick people opening their store in Alverton is abandoned. Mr. A. W. Byers has bought more of their store furnishings. Their store room would make a fine garage room for some enterprising machinist. It would make a good half-way house for the autos running through this way between Scottdale and the Pleasant City.

How to Cure Eczema, Pimples and Dandruff.

We desire to say that when we took the agency for ZEMO, we were convinced that it was a valuable remedy for Eczema, pimples and dandruff. Yet we must frankly admit that Zemo has far exceeded our expectations as a treatment for skin diseases. We are pleased to state that we shall continue the agency as ZEMO has given stupidid results wherever recommended. Our customers like ZEMO too, because it is a clean vegetable liquid for external use. ZEMO effects its cures by drawing to the surface of the skin and destroying the germ life that causes the disease, leaving the skin clear and healthy. It does not soil the clothing or linen and can be used freely on infants.

With every purchase we give a booklet on skin diseases explaining in simple words how any person can be cured at home of any form of skin diseases by this clean, scientific remedy. Graham & Company, Connellsville, and D. C. Eason, druggist, Dunbar. 4

FRIDAY EVENING, AUG. 5, 1910.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

United Press Special.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Old age pensions in foreign countries have been the subject of investigation by Congressman Frederick Lundin, Rep. (Ill.) He finds that they have proved successful and he is hopeful that some such provision for the care of the aged may be made in the United States.

"Germany was the pioneer in the movement," he says, "with a law passed in 1889; amended in 1891 and perfected in 1899. The present law covers 25 per cent of the population and is compulsory in many instances and voluntary in some. The pension is granted up to $37.50 a year, according to class and weekly premium paid. Beyond 70 years of age no incapacity need be shown to avail the beneficiary his or her pension.

"Denmark fell into line in 1891. All persons over 60 years of age are eligible to pension benefits, with certain limitations as to residence, health and record of citizenship.

"Laws were passed in New Zealand in 1891. All persons over 60 years of age are eligible to pension benefits, with certain limitations as to residence, health and record of citizenship.

"Laws were passed in New Zealand at intervals from 1897 to 1908, when all of them consolidated to create a liberal and enlightened system. Sixty-five years is the pension age, and to all those who are in New Zealand the government pays $2.50 weekly. The cost per capita of population is small. The benefits conferred are great and not only rebound to the benefit of pensioners, but to that of society in general.

"Belgium adopted an insurance annuity and nationally sustained pension act of 1900. Annuities are granted according to age and amount of premium paid. Pensions are paid to all over 65 years of age under certain prescribed conditions of want and disability.

"Italy, France and Austria are operating systems of annuities and pensions. Old age relief is recognized in these countries as an institution of worth, and the system cannot fail to grow with the advance of the times.

"Australia probably presents the best example of growth and modernization of the old-age pension idea. The general plan there is about as follows: Men over 65 and women over 60 are pensioned at the rate of $2.50 and $2.00 a week, respectively. Restrictions pertaining to income, residence and character surround the application of the law most effectively. I am in receipt of a letter from the American Consul at Newcastle, New South Wales, in which he says: 'It is the general opinion that these pensions are a very good thing and that these laws are working out satisfactorily. In order to see for myself the people receive their pensions, I was present the first of this month and saw a large number of them paid. They appeared to be a most respectful lot of old people, and I feel certain the money allowed them each month by the government is judiciously expended.'

"After years of consideration England adopted an old-age pension law in 1908. Under its provisions all persons over 70 years of age are pensionable, if they meet the requirements of regulations as to income, habits and character. The amounts paid run from 25 cents to $1.25 weekly.

"Canada passed an annuity law in 1908. Under it people beyond the age of 55 years may draw from $50 to $600 annually. It is a government insurance proposition pure and simple, and dependent upon premiums, but as a step, is encouraging to every believer in the humane policy of making provision for old age a matter of government regulation.

Some of the most expensive luxuries, comparatively speaking maintained by Uncle Sam are small custom houses, according to figures just made public. Through them the government collects the tariff on imported goods and various assessments on the merchants. A large majority of the custom houses are extremely profitable, and they garner nearly one-third of the money spent by billion dollar Congresses.

Customs receipts at Port Jefferson, New York, were so small, being nothing at all, that Collector Arthur H. Randall sought to surrender the post. For five years he struggled to surrender the shackles of the office. The Treasury Department would fain grant his freedom but could find nobody to take the place. The department relented a short time ago, gave Randall freedom, closed the office and transferred the business, if there should be any, to New York.

There are other ports where no difficulty is found in securing collectors even if there is little or no business. Some of these where the receipts aggregated nothing last year, with the expense of maintaining them, are as follows: Tappahannock, Va., $504; Yaquina, Ore., $1,031; Beaufort, N. C., $1,550; Bridgeton, N. J., with seven employes, $2,123; Cairo, Ill., $454; Galena, Ill., $407; Little Harbor, N. J., $138; Nantucket, Mass., $302; Paducah, Ky., $519; and Patchogue, N. Y., $608.

Tab is kept by the government on every custom house to find the cost of collecting the revenue. Annapolis had customs receipts of $3.00 last year and the cost to the government of collecting each dollar was $309.11. There was considerable vessel business at Alexandria, Va., but the total customs receipts amounted to only $10, and on that basis the cost of collection on each dollar was $122.10. The amount paid for each dollar collected at some other points were: Natchez, Miss., $52.70; St. Marys, Ga., $46.40; Saco, Me., $41.40; Great Egg Harbor, N. J., $25.15; Rock Island, Ill., $23.68; Teche, La., $23.45, and Portsmouth, N. H., $16.12.

In the large ports the expense to the government in collection of a dollar ranges from a little over two cents to five cents. In New York last year the cost per dollar was 2.2 cents and the aggregate receipts were $202,055,809. The average cost of collection in the country was 3.4 cents.

Customs houses are created by Congress and can be abolished only by the same authority. In the interest of economy secretaries of the Treasury have recommended that collectors be abolished at ports where there seems to be not enough business to justify the expense. Members in Congress, however, have steadfastly refused to rob towns in their states of the prestige of having customs houses and, besides, they afford something in the way of patronage.

OTHELLO'S OCCUPATION IS ALMOST GONE.

DEATHS.

Mrs. DeYoe's Funeral.

Short funeral services were held this afternoon over the remains of the late Mrs. Eliza Miranda DeYoe at her late home, No. 612 Morrell avenue, West Side. Rev. E. A. E. Palmquist, pastor of the First Baptist church, assisted by Rev D. B. Minerd, of Dunbar, officiated. Following the services the body was shipped over the Pittsburg and Lake Erie railroad to Conneaut, O., where services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. George Hannah, a sister-in-law of the deceased.

Mrs. DeYoe was aged 51 years, five months and three days. She was a daughter of Erastus, deceased, and Avis Williams and was born at Sheffield, Ashtabula county, Ohio. The greater part of her life was spent at Conneaut, O. In 1877 she married in Conneaut, O., to H. B. DeYoe, who since coming to Connellsville has been employed by the West Penn Railways Company as master car builder. Fifteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. DeYoe and family moved from Conneaut to Atlanta, Ga., where they resided up until eight years ago when they came to Connellsville to make their future home. Deceased had been ill of cancer for some time and for the past six months she was unable to lie down. Her condition has been serious for the past two months. She was conscious up until a short time before her death, which occurred yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. DeYoe was a member of the First Baptist church and was an active worker in the various societies. She took a great interest in hospital work and was a member of the W. C. T. U. She was a woman of a true Christian character and was a very patient sufferer during her lingering illness. In addition to her husband and three daughters, Mrs. C. B. Ricks, Misses Olive and Pearl DeYoe, she is survived by four brothers, John Julius, and Elisha Williams of Ashtabula, O., and Charles, of Chicago; and one sister, Mrs. Fred L. Riggs, of Spokane, Wash. Her mother, Mrs. Avis Williams, of Ashtabula, O., also survives.

Charles Harold Gates.

OHIOPYLE, Aug. 5.—Charles Harold Gates, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Gates, Jr., after a short illness of whooping cough, and pneumonia, was called from the once happy home of the bereaved young parents shortly after eight o'clock Wednesday evening. Every effort was put forth by the fond parents with hopes of sparing the life of their dear one, now gone into a peaceful and everlasting slumber to which all must prepare to go. The little one had just reached the age to which a fond and tender attachment is felt by all parents, aged eight months and 23 days. Relatives and friends will meet at the home at 10 o'clock a. m. Friday; after which funeral services will be preached in the M. E. church by Rev. C. E. Letchworth. Interment will be made in the Sugar Grove cemetery at 11 o'clock a. m. Much sympathy is shown toward the bereaved parents to lighten their saddened and aching hearts.

KILLED STRAY DOG.

Officer Thomas McDonald Puts End to Life of Obstreperous Canine.

Officer Thomas McDonald killed a stray canine this morning which has been roving about the business part of town for some days past. The dog is said to have bitten a man on the West Side last week and kept away from the officers until Burgess Evans and Patrolman McDonald spied him this morning.

Since being bitten by a canine two weeks ago McDonald has no love for canines with a disposition to use their teeth on the least provocation.

Pallbearers at Funeral.

John Jaynes, William Chambers, Joseph Killinger and John Chambers served as pallbearers at the funeral of the late Samuel Hillen which took place yesterday afternoon from the Breakneck church. The services were largely attended. Interment in Mt. Olive cemetery.

WIFE ANSWERS

In the Suit Brought Against Contractor Louis Costa.

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 5.—Her husband being out of the country and therefore unable to defend a suit in assumpsit recently brought against him by Ferdinand Guth, Mrs. Mary Costa, wife of Contractor Louis Costa, of Dunbar township, being familiar with the circumstances of the case, takes up her husband's cause and files an affidavit of defense in time to prevent judgment being entered in default of an answer. Mrs. Costa filed the answer Wednesday evening. She is represented by Attorney J. G. Carroll.

Some time ago Guth entered suit for $115.25 alleging that the defendant had violated a contract relative to mining sand stone from a Dunbar township quarry. The suit was for a year's royalty of $100 and a quantity of stone at 10 cents per yard.

Mrs. Costa admits the contract, but calls attention to a certain clause therein upon which she builds the defense. The clause is: "It is further understood and agreed that the period of this lease shall be 25 years, or such part thereof as is required to exhaust the stone. After said stone is exhausted said parties shall not be bound thereby."

Mrs. Costa says her husband exhausted the stone and, in trying to find still more that was marketable, suffered the loss of three car loads which he shipped, causing him to lose $300. After this loss, she says, her husband notified the plaintiff that he could not get more stone, whereupon it was agreed that the royalty of $100 per year named in the contract should be disregarded, but that he should continue to pay 10 cents per yard for such available stone as he could quarry. She says he has complied with this agreement, as she is familiar with his books, and has close knowledge of the business.

ORPHANS' COURT SESSION BEFORE JUDGE J. C. WORK

Administrator of Estate Ordered to Pay Money Over to Italian Consul.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, August 5.—Judge J. C. Work presided at a short session of Orphans' Court yesterday morning.

In the estate of Raffaela Peti, the court directed F. O. Dowar, administrator of the estate, to pay to Count Luigi Aldrovandi, Royal Italian Consul at Philadelphia, $96.90, to be forwarded to Michael Peti. The deceased died in 1907 leaving a balance of $96.90 to be paid to his father, in Italy. The father could not be located, and the money is turned over to the Italian authorities to be forwarded.

On November 29, 1909, George Patterson, guardian of the estate of Ellen Crossland, petitioned the court for his ward to direct him to pay $20 a month, out of the estate, for her maintenance and education. The petition was granted.

The petitioner believes that the order should not have been made, as she now fully understands the situation and in a petition presented yesterday asks for the rescinding of the order. It was granted.

A bond in the sum of $600 was approved, J. Audley Black and Andrew Brown being the sureties. Guy W. Brown of Fayette City is the principal as guardian of Amber T. and Myrtle J. Lloyd, children of Sarah Martin Lloyd, deceased.

GRAFT ON EAGLES CHARGED

Frauds Amounting to Thousands Alleged in Suit Started.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Charges of an extensive system of grafting which defrauded the Fraternal Order of Eagles, a society of 360,000 members in the United States and Canada, of thousands of dollars through the operations of former officers of the society were made today in connection with a suit for recovery of $500 started in the Municipal Court. Present officers of the order declare that this is only the start of what will prove one of the biggest graft exposures of the year.

No names were mentioned in the original charge, but the attorney of the order, who is in Chicago, declared there is plenty of evidence. The attorney is Charles Williams, who came from Cincinnati today to assume charge of the case. The investigation, it is said, has been a far-reaching one and has uncovered graft that has mounted into big figures. The report already has been made up and it is expected it will be presented to the grand serie at the convention this month.

PRESIDENT REVIEWS

The Battleship Fleet and Speaks at Pilgrim Celebration.

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 5—President Taft reviewed his first big fleet of battleships since he became commander-in-chief of the navy at Provincetown today. The president is to make the principal address at the dedication of the Pilgrims' monument.

Former President Roosevelt laid the cornerstone of that monument some years ago and talked principally about malefactors of great wealth. Mr Taft, it was said, will confine himself to the pilgrims and earlier colonial history. Governor Draper of Massachusetts, Senator Lodge, Congressman McCleary of Minnesota and other well known men are to speak, too.

The president came over to Provincetown from Beverly on the Mayflower. Mrs. Taft, Associate Justice White of the supreme court, Senators Lodge and Wetmore, Secretary Norton and Captain Butt completed the presidential party. The yacht passed in review between the line of battleships and there were the usual salutes and visits of the battleships commanders to the president and the return call.

SUPPLY OF WATER AT DAWSON SHORT.

Regular Meeting of Union Board of Trade Last Night,

THE ADVANCE IN GAS RATES

Is Subject of Resolution Condemning the Raise—Citizens Hope for an Early Decree in the Matter of a Free Bridge—B. & O. Busy.

Special to The Courier.

DAWSON, Aug. 5.—The Union Board of Trade met in the borough building last evening, it being their regular meeting night. In the absence of President A. J. Cochran, Dr. J. F. Cogan acted in that capacity. The different committees were called on for reports. The most important was that of the water committee. The water supply is short and has been for a long time. The lines having been leased along with the reservoir eight years ago. The lease has two years to run. H. T. Cochran, the owner of the Dawson Driving Park, is ready to build a big reservoir to supply water, but the lines are tied up by the lease. It is thought, however, that the water committee and the Council can find a way to solve this problem. It was also suggested that a well be located to be used as a public drinking place. There is a well in front of the postoffice that years ago was used as such, but it was private and the owners closed it up. Now it has become the property of parties that would turn it over to the public.

The publicity committee was instructed to have a large sign painted at the driving park entrance before Tuesday. The freeing of the Dawson bridge was taken up and discussed. A decree of the court is hoped for soon. The matter of a free bridge was started by the Citizens League before the Board of Trade was organized, but the work has been taken up recently by the Board of Trade, the two bodies being composed of the same persons. The chief engineer of the B. & O. railroad was here recently to confer with the Board of Trade, but nothing was given out to the public. There will be something doing before long by the B. & O. The company proposes to build four tracks over the Pittsburg division and will want some changes in the right of way through Dawson. Resolutions were passed protesting against the Fayette County Gas Company in raising their rates.

Suits Entered Against Tri-State Co.; The Morton Will Again Up in Court.

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 5.—Suits for sums aggregating $22,000 were entered Thursday afternoon against the Maryland, Pennsylvania and West Virginia Telephone and Telegraph Company, commonly called the Tri-State. The suits were brought by Uniontown banks and J. M. Jenkins, all being for money borrowed by the defendant company.

Interest in the famous Morton will litigation at Connellsville was revived Thursday when the transcribed records of all the proceedings in the Common Pleas court were filed in the Orphans' Court, before which tribunal the case will next come up for a hearing. The records in the Prothonotary's office were transcribed by Clerk Earl Huston. The case is now before the court on a rule to show cause why the will of Amanda Morton, under date of June 22, 1905, should not be probated. This will bequeathed all the property to her husband, Alexander B. Morton. The estate is worth approximately $100,000, but a later will gave a house and lot worth $10,000 to a niece, Mrs. Jennie Thompson. After a fight in court Mrs. Thompson won her case, but the jury failed to make a finding regarding the mental capacity of Mrs. Morton at the time of making the first will. This allows the case to get into court again.

Upon the death of Mrs. Morton two wills were discovered. The will of June 22, 1905, gave all the property to her husband. The will of July 20, 1905, willed Mrs. Thompson a house and lot. But the will of June 22, 1905, had a codicil dated October 8, 1906, a few days before the death of Mrs. Morton. The case was certified to the Common Pleas Court to determine which will was valid. The jury found that Mrs. Morton was capable of making the will of July 20 and that no undue influence was used, while regarding the codicil of October 8, 1906, the jury found that she was mentally incapable of making it. This established the legality of the will of July 20, 1905. But the jury did not pass upon the mental condition at the time of making the will of June 22. This will was a joint writing wherein it was mutually agreed between husband and wife that the survivor should have the other's property. This agreement, it is claimed, establishes the validity of the will of June 22, her mental condition not being questioned, and, under the agreement, the husband secured all the property regardless of any subsequent will.

Therefore, it is held, this will should be probated. On the other hand counsel for Mrs. Thompson aver that the will of July 20 is the one legal will, made without undue influence, and that the prior agreement between husband and wife will not stand in law if either side declines to be held by the agreement, such declination being indicated on the part of the wife by the terms of the will of July 20.

Exceptions to the final account of the administrator of the estate of the late Mary Reid, in which a table cloth used for a wedding dinner figured prominently, were to be feared in the Orphans' Court, Thursday, but in order that further search may be made for some missing articles the case was continued until next week. The exceptions have been pending for more than two years.

Large Crowds Are Gathering

NIGHTLY TO TAKE IN THE QUAKER SHOW.

Tomorrow night is amateur night when a host of Connellsville amateur singers, dancers etc, compete for cash prizes; Quaker Doctor's office will open tomorrow at Trans-Allegheny Hotel, where he can be seen daily until permanent quarters in one of the business blocks has been secured.

The large crowd of people gathered on the lot back of the Yough House last evening to see the free Quaker Doctor's show is proof positive that the people are clever entertainers. It also shows that a show can be given on a vacant lot and if it is meritorious; all classes of people will go to see it. Noticeable among the crowd last night was some of our representative citizens with their families and they seemed to enjoy the coon shouting of the lady performers and banjo jugglting, ventriloquism, etc., as well as the laborer who touched elbows with them. It was also noticeable when the Quaker commenced to talk of some of the cures made in our neighboring cities, particularly that of Mrs. W. O Hawkins, wife of the pastor of the M. E. Church from whose system passed a large tape worm after taking a dose of his Quaker Herbs, they allowed a great deal of interest and when the Quaker started to sell his Herbs, many of them were not afraid to invest a dollar for the medicine.

Other Uniontown and Brownsville people who testify as to the cures, due to the use of his medicines are Mr. Frank Brezick, of Buffington Mines No 2; Mr Ball, head blacksmith for the H. C. Frick Coke Co., 8-year-old Harry McLaughlin, of Evans Station, Stephen Franks, the well known grocer, and Mr. Watkins, engineer and pumper for the Isabella Coke Co. These and many others were relieved of monster tape worms by taking one dose of this Quaker Herbs, and found a cure after suffering for years and trying all manner of medicines and treatments.

At his show tomorrow night the Quaker gives all Connellsville amateurs a chance to go on his stage and compete for cash prizes and judging from the many names that have been handed in, there will be a large showing of these embryo actors.

The Quaker Doctor's office will open tomorrow for the first time in the Trans-Allegheny hotel. These quarters are only temporary until a permanent location can be secured in one of our business blocks. Examination is by card only. Hours, 10 to 12 a. m.

GORE'S STORY IS SENSATIONAL.

Told, He Says, Vice President Was "Man Higher Up."

BRIBERY TALE CORROBORATED

Blind Oklahoma Senator Gives Testimony in Regard to His Charges Alleging Attempting Bribery in Connection With Indian Land Contracts.

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 5.—United States Senator Gore, who made the sensational statement on the floor of the senate June 24 that an attempt had been made to bribe him by a "man from my own town," reiterated his statement more in detail before the congressional investigation committee and named the man as Jake Hammon of Lawton, Okla., former chairman of the Republican state central committee of Oklahoma.

He also referred to Vice President Sherman as the official "higher up" whom he (Gore) had been told had an interest in the McMurray contracts with the Indians. Senator Curtis of Kansas, ex-Senators Long of Kansas and Thurston of Nebraska and Richard Adams, a Delaware Indian, were also referred to as men who had interests in the contracts.

Congressman Creager later corroborated Gore's testimony. Creager said he had been "offered an interest" in the contracts if he would still the opposition in congress.

The contracts referred to are individual contracts with the Indians of the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations whereby McMurray is to get 10 per cent of the entire proceeds of the sale of the segregated coal and asphalt lands and other properties of the tribes when sold.

Testimony Against Hammon.

Senator Gore's testimony relative to Hammon was as follows:

"Hammon came to my office in Washington on May 6 and said he was interested in the McMurray contracts and asked me if I would use my influence to have an amendment passed approving them. He said there was a big fee in the contracts for him. I told him I understood so. Hammon then said there is enough for two of us if you will call on Senator Hughes and have him block the legislation. We discussed the matter for some time.

"I let him talk in order to draw him out. He urged the approval of the contracts on the ground that many of the Indians wanted the sale and said that they were a lot of ignorant fellows to whom it would make no difference."

When Senator Gore spurned the offer first of $25,000 and then $50,000 he declared that Hammon then said they would scale down the per cent on the fee and lead the people to believe they were befriending the Indians and these interested would make as much out of it anyway.

"Hammon told me there was a United States senator interested and a congressman. I was surprised. He also referred to an official 'high up.'"

"Who were they," asked Chairman Burke.

Gore Didn't Want to Tell.

Senator Gore at first refused to tell, but Burke insisted the committee had a right to know.

"They are Senator Curtis of Kansas and Congressman McGuire of Oklahoma," was the reply.

"I believe you made mention of some official 'high up,'" said Burke.

"Hammon suggested that it was Vice President Sherman," replied Gore.

This statement caused a profound sensation. A Washington paper was then offered on the stand to show that the vice president at the time McMurray was seeking the approval of the contracts by the president, and with others, held a conference with the president relative to the Indian contracts.

Gore said that he understood that Mr. Sherman was favorable to the contracts. Later in the day he said he did not care to impeach a high official of the senate on the word of a man of the character of Hammon. He referred to Hammon as a "man who befriended me in time of need" and told how Hammon had gone on his note for $500 before the primary campaign in Oklahoma. Gore proceeding further about his conversation with Hammon said:

Would Be "Clean Money."

"Hammon was to transact all the business and have the contract made with him. He said there would be no checks. It would be clean money." He inferred that the money was to be paid after the deal was made. Senator Gore continued.

"I let Hammon talk on because I wanted to get all the information I could on this. I went to La Follette and other Senators and told them what had occurred."

Gore also made the assertion that he had learned from a subordinate in the employ of the government that some one in the attorney general's department was interested in the contracts.

All efforts on the part of members of the committee to induce Gore to tell who his informant was failed. Gore said the man would lose his place if his name was revealed.

INSURGENTS OF IOWA FOLLOW LEAD OF THEIR KANSAS BRETHREN.

The first day of the Iowa Republican convention was more of an ovation to the "insurgent" leaders Senators Cummins and Dolliver than to the administration. The regulars were beaten at nearly every point, and like the situation in Kansas, where Senator Bristow and Representative Murdock made substantial gains, it seems that the progressives will win the majority of the nominations.

Gore's Brother in Side Room.

Dixie Gore, brother and private secretary to the senator, testified to having been in an adjoining room when Hammon is alleged to have attempted to bribe the senator. The young man said that Hammon in leaving said: "Dixie, I would like to make a whole lot of money and I don't care how I make it. The senator is rough on his friends."

Valuable testimony corroborative to that of Senator Gore was given by Congressman Creager of the Third Oklahoma district. Creager said he had been approached on various occasions and urged to support the McMurray contracts. On one occasion he had been invited to the room in the Occidental hotel, occupied by both Hammon and McGuire. Hammon told him if he would withdraw his opposition he could arrange it so Creager could have an "interest" in the contracts.

Creager said he did not allow him to proceed further and used some emphatic language and the subject was never broached to him again.

"I regarded it as an offer for my services," said Creager on cross-examination. "It amounted to such."

Gore explained during his testimony that it would have been absurd for congress to sanction the McMurray contracts which called for a 10 per cent fee out of the $30,000,000 sale as the government had already guaranteed to sell the land for the Indians without any expense to them.

TREATED TO SURPRISE.

John D. Rockefeller Receives Process Server With Open Arms.

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—Remembering the experience of the process servers who sought John D. Rockefeller when Federal Judge Landis wanted him as a witness in Chicago Deputy Sheriff Halloran approached the Forest Hill home of the oil king in fear and trembling. Halloran wanted to serve Rockefeller with papers in a $550,000 suit.

He knocked on the lodge gates and explained his mission to Bat Lynch, the head keeper, who telephoned the mansion and said:

"Mr. Rockefeller will see you at once. He is sending a carriage for you."

John D. met Halloran on the porch, gave him a warm handclasp, and ushered him into a parlor.

"I am glad to see you. What can I do for you today?"

After Halloran went through the formality of serving the summons Rockefeller said:

"Now I'll have you driven out to the gate if you wish."

"If it suits you just as well, I'd rather walk back and see the grounds," Halloran told Rockefeller.

"Very well," said the oil king. "If you want to get the best view go this way," he added as he pointed to a path.

SHERMAN MAKES STRONG DENIAL.

No Truth in Statement Implicating Him He Declares.

SENATOR CURTIS ALSO DENIES

Vice President Says There Isn't a Vestige of Truth in Statement Implicating Him in Indian Contract Scandal as Brought Out by Gore.

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Vice President James S. Sherman, at Coveys camp, near Big Moose in the Adirondacks, said that the charge made by Senator Gore at Muskogee, naming him as the man supposedly "higher up" in the McMurray Indian contracts bribery matter was absolutely without foundation. The vice president's denial was as follows:

"The statement credited to Senator Gore in the investigation into the McMurray Indian contracts matter at Muskogee, Okla., is absolutely without foundation in so far as it refers to me. There is not a vestige of truth in any charge or statement implicating me in this affair."

At first the vice president was disposed to ignore the matter, stating that it did not deserve to be dignified by a denial, but later he gave the brief statement.

Curtis Willing to Testify.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 5.—United States Senator Charles Curtis, when told about the allegations made by Senator Gore at the Muskogee congressional inquiry into the Indian attorney fee matter, in which his name was used as one of those interested in the McMurray contracts, emphatically denied having any connection with the matter whatever.

He gave the president, members of the cabinet and his fellow senators as witnesses to prove his assertions.

Senator Curtis sent a dispatch to the board of inquiry in which he declared that the use of his name in connection with the McMurray contracts was without foundation and that he would appear before the committee at any time and place desired.

Hammon Has Nothing to Say.

Muskogee, Okla., Aug. 5.—Jacob Hammon said to a press representative that he had no statement to make at this time in connection with Senator Gore's allegations at the Indian contracts inquiry, but that he might make one later.

No Comment at Beverly.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 5.—No comment was available here on the Gore charges in Oklahoma and it is said that there will be none.

Kittanning Police on Strike.

Kittanning, Pa., Aug. 5.—Kittanning's police force, numbering three men, went on a strike when they were ordered to take shotguns provided by the borough and to shoot all unmuzzled dogs running at large. An ordinance providing for shooting unmuzzled dogs went into effect on Aug. 1.

Could Not Bear Separation.

Fairmont, W. Va., Aug. 5.—Dale Wetzel, a sixteen-year-old boy, took a dose of chloroform because he was soon to be separated from his sweetheart, Mildred Chaffee. His mother was taking him to Washington, hoping to break up the attachment.

Earnings Now of Western Maryland Are at Rate of $7,000,000 a Year.

In the six months ended June 30, last, the Western Maryland railway reported gross earnings of $3,632,000, against $2,858,130 in the corresponding period of last year. This shows an increase of $773,000, or 27%. During the month of July this ratio of improvement was not maintained, due to a smaller volume of coal traffic. Each succeeding week has, however, marked more satisfactory results in this respect. For the first week of July gross increased only 1.7% over the corresponding week of last year. For the second week the increase was 12.1% and for the third 20.3%. The total increase for the six and three-quarter months was, therefore, $817,000, or 25.3%.

Based on the showing for the calendar year to date Western Maryland appears to be earning at the rate of over $7,000,000 per annum. On this volume of earnings a surplus after charges and taxes in the neighborhood of $1,450,000 can be shown, provided the property is operated on the same per centage of gross earnings for the full year as was evident for the five months ended May 31, the latest period for which operating expenses and net earnings have been reported.

In the five months gross earnings showed an increase of $692,408, or 29.3%; operating expenses and taxes increased only 9.5%; net earnings increased 70.6%; other income and income from coal properties increased 40.1%, and total net income available for fixed charges increased 65.5%, or $602,000.

After deducting charges and totals the surplus available for dividends in the five months was $211,155, or $211,455 in excess of the full year's dividends on the preferred stock. The newly reorganized company's fixed charges and rentals have been reduced to slightly under $2,200,000 per annum, as against $2,600,000 for the old company in the year ended June 30, 1909, at which time the new company took over the property. Based on the increase in total income and the reduction in fixed charges, surplus for the year promises to show 1% on the $10,000,000 preferred stock and about 2% on the $50,000,000 common.

The company's financial exhibit as of May 31 makes equally as satisfactory a showing as does its operating. Due to the sale of $25,169,670 common stock earlier in the year, the proceeds of which are to be used to finance its new extension from Cumberland, Md., to Connellsville, cash and cash items on hand were $13,866,000 and total current assets aggregated $15,657,000. Current liabilities amounted to $1,514,000. The working assets are, therefore, over $14,000,000.

About $12,700,000, it is estimated will be required to complete and equip ready for operation, the new line to be constructed. This will be finished in the fall of 1911, when the company will gain entrance to the Pittsburg district over the rails of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie, with which the Western Maryland had made a 99-year traffic agreement for securing reasonable and satisfactory through routes for the handling of traffic.

Of the 87 miles of right of way for the new line the company has already secured 82%. Construction work is being pushed rapidly. Preparations have been made to start boring the long tunnel from both ends on August 10. The contractors are increasing forces and equipment as rapidly as possible. Over 2,200 men are now at work, as against 1,500 on July 16. Thirty-one steam shovels have been installed, as against eight on July 16, and 27 narrow gauge locomotives, against 13 in the middle of July. With the present equipment, barring unforeseen circumstances, it is expected the new line can be finished and turned over to the company at the scheduled time.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of these experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an unfailing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

CHAPTER XV.

From the Devil to the Deep Sea.

"How shall we go?" asked Orme, as they descended to the street level.

"By train. There is no other convenient way, since my car is at home." She looked at him doubtfully, and added, "but they will be watching the railroad stations."

He nodded. "A motor would be safer—if we can get one." He gave her hand a secret pressure while the elevator boy was opening the door for them, and as she passed before him she flashed upon him a look so filled with love and trust that the sudden thrill of his happiness almost stifled him.

At the La Salle street entrance Orme had a fleeting glimpse of the watching Alcatrante. The South American, after one astonished stare, darted away in the dusk. He would follow them, of course, but Orme decided to say nothing about him to the girl.

"I must telephone," she said suddenly, stopping as if to turn back to the building. "Father will be very anxious."

"The booths in the building must be closed," he said. "We'd better try a drug store."

Accordingly they made their way to the nearest, and the girl went to the booth. The door was shut for a long time.

While he was waiting, Orme glanced through the brilliant window. In the light of an electric lamp across the street he discerned faintly a motionless figure; without hesitation he crossed the pavement, recognizing Alcatrante more clearly as he left the dazzle of the store.

The minister did not budge. His face, as Orme approached, was cold and expressionless.

"Senor," exclaimed Orme, "does your trade include murder?"

"Not at all. Why do you ask, Mr. Orme?"

"Because only a lucky intervention has saved you from the murder of a young lady and myself."

"You are exaggerating, my dear sir." Alcatrante laughed.

"Is it your custom to lock people into air-tight chambers?"

"Air-tight?" Alcatrante was clearly disconcerted. "I did not suppose that it was air-tight. Also, I did not dream that the young lady was there. But this game is a serious game, Mr. Orme. You do not appear to understand. When one is working for his country, many strange things are justified."

"Even murder?"

"Even murder—sometimes."

Orme had an inspiration. "Thank you for the truth, senor," he said. "I, too, am working for my country. If you continue to follow us, I shall assume that you have murder in your mind, and I shall act accordingly."

Alcatrante smiled coolly.

He glanced to the drug store and saw the girl coming out of the telephone booth. Hastening across the street, he met her at the door.

"If father had had any idea of such complications when we came west," she said, "there would have been plenty of men near by to help us. As it is, we shall have to act alone. It is not a matter for detectives—or for the police. I—I almost wish it were," she faltered.

Orme wondered again whether this father could have realized what dangers the girl was encountering. But, as if divining his sudden anger against the man who could let his daughter run such risks, she added: "He doesn't know, of course, the details of our adventures. I have permitted him to think that it is simply a matter of searching."

"And now he is reassured?"

"Yes. Oh, you have no idea yet how important it is."

"You were a long time in the booth," he said.

A mysterious smile flittered across her face. "I thought of another person I wished to talk to. That person was hard to get."

"Long distance?"

"It proved necessary to use long distance."

Then she caught a glimpse of the figure across the street. "There's Mr. Alcatrante," she exclaimed.

"Yes, I have just had a talk with him."

Her face showed concern.

"Don't let him worry you, dear," he added. "He will try to balk us. We must expect that. But I think I can take care of him."

"I believe it," she said, softly.

He wondered whether she could guess how relentlessly he was planning to deal with Alcatrante. Would she justify the course he had in mind? As to her attitude, he felt doubtful. Perhaps she did not agree with the South American that murder was sometimes necessary in the service of one's country.

Moreover, while Alcatrante was undoubtedly serving the interest of his country, Orme had no real certainty that he himself was in a similar position. He had every reason to infer that the papers were of importance to the United States government, but after all he could only go by inference. The affairs of some private corporation in the United States might have a serious bearing on problems in South America and the far east. He decided to sound the girl for information that would be more definite.

But first the question as to their next move must be answered.

"Do you know where we can get a motor?" he said.

"No"—she prolonged the word doubtfully. "We may have to take a motor cab."

"It would be safer than the railroad or the electric line." Then he asked with great seriousness: "Girl, dear, I don't know much about the meaning and value of these papers in my pocket, and I don't care to know any more than you choose to tell me. But let me know just this much: Are they as important to you as they are to our enemies? Have you really been justified in the risks you have run?"

"You have seen how far Alcatrante and the Japanese have been willing to go," she replied, gravely. "I am sure that they would not hesitate to kill us, if it seemed necessary to them in their effort to get possession of the papers. Now, my dear, they are even much more important to my father."

"In his business interests?"

"Much more than that."

They were walking along the glimmering canyon of La Salle street, which was now almost deserted in the dusk. A motor car swept slowly around the corner ahead and came toward them. It had but one occupant, a chauffeur, apparently. He wore a dust coat, a cap, and goggles which seemed to be too large for him.

Regardless of Alcatrante, who was following them, Orme hailed the chauffeur. "Will you take a fare?" he called.

The man stopped his car and, after a moment of what Orme interpreted as indecision, nodded slowly.

"How much by the hour?" asked Orme.

The chauffeur held up the ten fingers of his two hands.

Orme looked at the girl. He hadn't that much money with him.

"If I only had time to cash a check," he said.

"All right," she whispered. "I have plenty."

They got into the tonneau, and the girl, leaning forward, said: "Take the Lake Shore drive and Sheridan road to Evanston."

Again the chauffeur nodded, without turning toward them.

"He doesn't waste many words," whispered the girl to Orme.

While the car was turning Orme noted that Alcatrante had stopped short and was watching them. It was some reason for surprise that he was not hunting for a motor in which to follow.

Perhaps his plans were so completely balked that he was giving up altogether. No, that would not be like Alcatrante. Orme now realized that in all likelihood the minister had foreseen some such circumstance and had made plans accordingly.

He was more and more inclined to believe that Alcatrante had but half expected to keep him long imprisoned in Wallingham's office. Then what had been the purpose underlying the trick? Probably the intention was to make Orme prisoner for as long a period as possible and, in any event, to gain time enough to communicate with Portal and the Japanese and whatever other persons might be helping in the struggle to regain the papers. The probabilities were that Alcatrante had been using the last two hours to get in touch with his friends.

And now those friends would be informed promptly that Orme and the girl were setting out by motor. This analysis apparently accounted for Alcatrante's nonchalance. Orme and the girl seemed to be escaping, but in truth if they approached their destination at all, they must run into the ambuscade of other enemies. Then the nearer the goal, the greater the danger.

As the motor slid smoothly northward on La Salle street, Orme looked back. Alcatrante had made no move. The last glimpse that Orme had of him showed that slight but sinister figure alone on the sidewalk of the deserted business street.

They crossed the Clark street bridge. "Keep on out North Clark street until you can cross over to Lincoln park," said Orme to the chauffeur.

The only indication that the order had been heard was a bending forward of the bowed figure on the front seat.

Orme explained to the girl: "It will be better not to take the Lake Shore drive. They may be watching the Pere Marquette."

"You are right," she said. "As a precaution, we'd better not pass the hotel."

"How surprised I was to find you waiting for me there last evening," mused Orme—"and how glad!"

"I never called on a man before," she laughed.

"I had made up my mind only a little while before," he continued, "to stay in Chicago till I found you."

"I'm afraid that would not have been easy." She returned the pressure of his hand, which had found hers. "If it hadn't been for those papers, we might never have met."

"We were bound to meet—you and I," he said. "I have been waiting all my life just for you."

"But even now you don't know who I am. I may be a—a political adventuress—or a woman detective—or—"

"You may be," he said, "but you are the woman I love. Your name—your business, if you have one—those things don't matter. I know you, and I love you."

She leaned closer to him. "Dear," she whispered impulsively, "I am going to tell you everything—who I am, and about the papers—"

"Wait!" He held his hand before her mouth. "Don't tell me now. Do as you planned to do. Be simply 'Girl' to me for a while longer."

She moved closer to him. Their errand, the danger, were for the time forgotten, and the motor hummed along with a burden of happiness.

"You haven't looked at the papers yet," said Orme, after a time. They were turning east toward Lincoln park.

"Do I need to?"

"Perhaps not. I took them from the envelope which you saw at Ariina's. But here they are. I did not look at them, of course."

He drew the parchments from within his coat and placed them in her hand.

While she examined them, he looked straight ahead, that he might not see. He could hear them crackle as she unfolded them—could hear her sigh of content.

And then something occurred that disquieted him to a degree which seemed unwarranted. The chauffeur suddenly turned around and glanced swiftly through his goggles at the girl and the papers. The action was, perhaps, natural; but there was an assured expectancy in the way he turned—Orme did not like it. Moreover, there was something alarmingly familiar in the manner of the movement.

"Does Our Chauffeur Remind You of Any One?"

Somewhere Orme had seen a man move his body like that. But before his suspicions could take form, the chauffeur had turned again.

The girl handed the papers back to Orme. "These are the right papers," she said. "Oh, my dear, if you only knew how much they mean."

He held them for a moment in his hand. Then, after returning them to his pocket with as little noise as possible, he caught the girl's eye and, with a significant glance toward the chauffeur, said in a distinct voice:

"I will slip them under the seat cushion. They will be safer there."

Did the chauffeur lean farther back, as if to hear better? or was the slight movement a false record of Orme's imagination?

Orme decided to be on the safe side, so he slipped under the cushion of the extra seat another mining prospectus which he had in his pocket, placing it in such a way that the end of the paper protruded. Then he put his lips close to the girl's ear and whispered:

"Don't be alarmed, but tell me, does our chauffeur remind you of anyone?"

She studied the stolid back in front of them. The ill fitting dust-coat masked the outline of the figure; the cap was so low on the head that the ears were covered.

"No," she said, at last, "I think not." With that, Orme sought to reassure himself.

They were in Lincoln park now. Over this same route Orme and the girl had ridden less than twenty-four hours before. To him the period seemed like a year. Then he had been plunging into mysteries unknown with the ideal of his dreams; now he was moving among secrets partly understood, with the woman of his life—loving her and knowing that she loved him.

One short day had brought all this to pass. He had heard it said that Love and Time are enemies. The falseness of the saying was clear to him in the light of his own experience. Love and Time are not enemies; they are strangers to each other.

On they went northward. To Orme the streets through which they passed were now vaguely familiar, yet he could hardly believe his eyes when they swung around on to the lake front at Evanston, along the broad ribbon of Sheridan road.

But there was the dark mysterious surface of Lake Michigan at their right. Beyond the broad beach, he could see the line of breakwaters, and at their left the electric lights threw their beams into the blackness of little parks and shrubby lawns.

The car swept to the left, past the university campus.

"Do you remember?" asked the girl, in a low voice, pressing his arm. Then, "Don't!" she whispered. "Some one will see!" for he had drawn her face to his.

They came to the corner of Chicago avenue and Sheridan road, where they had halted the night before in their search for the hidden papers. "We'd better give him further directions," said the girl.

But the chauffeur turned north at the corner and put on more speed.

"He's taking the right direction," she laughed. "Perhaps his idea is to follow Sheridan road till we tell him to turn."

"I don't quite like it," said Orme, thoughtfully. "He's a bit too sure of what he's doing."

The girl hesitated. "It is funny," she exclaimed. "And he's going faster, too." She leaned forward and called up to the chauffeur: "Stop at this corner."

He did not seem to hear. She repeated the order in a louder voice, but the only answer was another burst of speed.

Then Orme reached up and touched the chauffeur's shoulders. "Stop the car!" he cried.

The chauffeur did not obey. He did not even turn his head.

Orme and the girl looked at each other. "I don't understand," she said.

"I'm afraid I am beginning to," Orme replied. "He will not stop until we are where he wishes us to be."

"We can't get out," she exclaimed.

"No. And if I pull him out of the seat, the car will be ditched." He puzzled vainly to hit on a method of action, and meantime the moments sped.

They passed the university grounds quickly. Orme retained an impression of occasional massive buildings at the right, including the dome of an observatory, and at the left the lighted windows of dwellings.

He saw, too, the tower of a lighthouse, a dark foundation supporting a changing light above; and then the road turned sharply to the left and, after a few hundred yards, curved again to the north.

Suddenly the chauffeur slowed down. On either side were groves of trees. Ahead were the lights of an approaching motor.

Orme was still at a loss, and the girl was awaiting some decision from him. When the chauffeur at last turned and spoke—three short words—Orme realized too late the situation he and the girl were in.

"We stop now," said the chauffeur.

And the girl, with a horrified gasp, exclaimed: "Maku!"

Yes, it was the Japanese.

Calmly he put on the brakes and brought the car to a standstill by the roadside; then, removing his goggles, turned to Orme and the girl and smiled an inscrutable smile. There was an ugly bruise on his forehead, where Orme had struck him with the wrench.

But quick though Maku was, he was not quick enough to see a motion which Orme had made immediately after the moment of recognition—a motion which had even escaped the notice of the girl. Perhaps it accounted for the coolness with which Orme met his enemy's g[illegible]

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ACTS ON ARNOLD CASE

Violation of Laws Charged at the Primary in Westmoreland Town.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 4.—County Detective Welty M. Dom, by direction of District Attorney William T. Dom, Jr., last evening made information against James P. Mulvihill, Albert Baker and Thomas Patton, judge and inspectors of the Arnold election precinct at the primary election on June 4, charging them with a violation of the election laws. The charges were preferred before W. Irwin Hunter, a justice of the peace of this town. A constable from the office of Hunter will go to Arnold today to make the arrests.

District Attorney Dom has been receiving complaints from residents of the Arnold district ever since the reopening and recounting of the ballot boxes and ballots by the county commissioners several weeks ago. They urged prosecution of the election board.

The Act of 1871 requires that when a voter is not registered he must make affidavit that he is a resident of the district, that he paid taxes and must have a voucher. In the Arnold district, it is alleged, there were 65 persons voted who were not registered and were not qualified. Many of these the district attorney declares were not known in the district.

The election trouble was brought about by the action of Berkey Boyd, a local option candidate for the Legislature, who protested against the counting of two ballots from Arnold and Hyde Park, for his opponents. The result was an investigation by the county commissioners, and the throwing out of the entire Arnold vote. Boyd was given the nomination and Daniel Sullivan was defeated.

Falls From Tree.

Failing from a tree at Dunbar yesterday, Jack Devitt, an Italian, aged 20 sustained injuries that caused his removal to the Cottage State hospital. He was injured internally and also suffered a fracture of the clavicle.

Nace is Paroled.

James Nace, charged with incorrigibility, who was committed to the county home a few days ago, has been sent to the home of Joseph Hughes in Dunbar township. He will remain under the supervision of Probation Officer Charles O'Neill.

"BACK TO THE FARM"

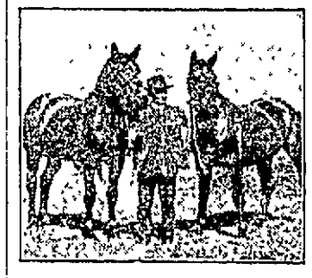

VII.—How Some Men Have Succeeded on the Farm.

By C. V. GREGORY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

THERE are many millionaire farmers, but most of them have made their millions elsewhere and are spending them on rural estates merely to gratify a fancy. There are a number of men, however, who have made millions on the farm. It is not such an easy thing to do, but the success of these men shows some of the possibilities that the farm holds for the man who desires to make money in large amounts.

Probably the most notable of the men who have made fortunes on the farm is David Rankin. When David Rankin was married he handed the preacher his last five dollar bill with the remark that now he could start square with the world. He bought land on time and borrowed money to buy cattle. His first purchases were in Illinois. Later he removed to Missouri, attracted by the cheap prairie land that needed only a little drainage to make it yield abundantly. Today David Rankin owns nearly 26,000 acres of this same Missouri land, and it would all sell for $100 an acre. Add to this his cattle and horses and machinery and a few incidentals, such as bank stock and the like, and he has a fortune approximating $1,000,000. This has all been made in farming. Corn has been his specialty, and it has always been marketed in the form of cattle. He has always used the most modern machinery and the best equipment that money can buy. It has been the same with help. His foremen are men who can get results. He furnishes them with automobiles to take them from farm to farm because he has found that it pays in the time saved. He attributes his success to close personal attention and the application of business methods to farming.

Another man who has made millions in farming is Colonel James M. Smith of Georgia. Colonel Smith started raising corn and cotton on a rundown quarter section in Oglethorpe county soon after the war. The first year he lost $100. Last year his net profits were $100,000. In the meantime his farm has increased to 23,000 acres. Colonel Smith was one of the first men to build cottonseed oil mills and make a profit from what formerly had been a waste product. His farm was twenty-five miles from the nearest railroad, but he solved the problem by building a railroad of his own. He has always been a personal friend of all his men, white and black alike. He has provided well equipped schools for both the negro and the white children of his employees. Unlike David Rankin, who never had even a common school education, Colonel Smith is a college graduate. He learned to handle men in the army, and he applied the same organization to his farm work with great results.

Colonel Smith's success has demonstrated what can be done on the farm land of the south. One of his 200 acre farms a year ago yielded 1,800 bushels of wheat and 200 bales of cotton. The wheat sold for $1 a bushel and the cotton for $50 a bale, making a total income from the farm of $11,800. After taking out the expenses there was a net profit of $51 an acre. This might well make even a Mississippi valley farmer envious.

The west has been heralded as the land of opportunity. In the early days, when land could be had almost for the asking and the cattle business was at its best, a young man of the name of Henry Miller started out to make a fortune in the ranch business. Today he is worth $20,000,000. He once announced that he hoped some day to own the whole state of California. In this he did not succeed, although his holdings in California amount to 600,000 acres. He also has large tracts of land in Nevada and Oregon.

The ranch business is on the decline in the west, and what was once one man's cattle ranch is now being cut up to make farms for the hundreds of thousands of land hungry settlers who are pouring into what is still "the land of opportunity." About twenty years ago an Iowa farmer sold a half section of land, paid his debts, and with seven or eight thousand dollars in cash, a wife and four children, started for Arizona. He located in the Salt river valley, bought as much of the cheap land as his money would pay for and set out to learn irrigation farming. He learned it well and made money. The surplus went to buy more land. He joined the Water Users' association and was influential in getting congress to start the Salt river irrigation project. Government irrigation insured permanent prosperity for the Salt river valley, and today this pioneer farmer who set out to make a fortune in "the great American desert" is worth more than $200,000.

Success in the irrigated districts is not necessarily measured in extensive farms and large bank accounts. A few years ago a locomotive engineer, sixty years old and broken in health, moved from Minneapolis to the state of Washington. He bought an acre of irrigated land, paying $1,400 for it. It contained an apple orchard in poor condition, a house and a few dilapidated outbuildings. The purchase of the land took nearly all the old engineer's savings. He pruned the old apple trees and set out thirty new ones. He sold off a few mongrel chickens that were on the place and bought a pure bred rooster and three hens. After the first year's expenses were paid he had enough money left to put on many improvements. The next year he put money in the bank, and the year after. So well did the acre produce that at the Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland in 1905 it was awarded the prize for the second most productive and best managed farm in the west.

It is instances like this that really show the possibilities of the farm for the average man. Few men can become great cattle kings, and not many can repeat the success of David Rankin or Colonel Smith. But the success of the old engineer on his one acre of irrigated farm land ought not to be so hard to duplicate.

There are men who say land is so high that there is little chance for the man with small capital to get a start. Notwithstanding this more young men are buying farms every year. A dozen years or so ago a young German who had been working by the day in northern Iowa decided to get married. After the ceremony his chief possessions, in addition to a capable wife were a horse and buggy and $150 in cash. He rented a farm and bought a grade Percheron mare. The prices he received for his first few colts opened his eyes to the profits of the horse business. He bought some more mares, pure breds this time. He made money from the start and has nearly enough money laid by to buy and pay for the farm he has been working.

Another young farmer in northern Iowa went into the dairy business six or seven years ago. Dairying was rather a new thing in his part of the country then. Most farmers preferred to raise corn, where they could do most of the work by machinery. Much of the land at that time was badly in need of drainage and was better suited to pasture than to corn growing. A few wet seasons reduced the profits of the corn growers almost to the vanishing point. The young fellow who had put his faith in dairy cows jingled milk pails and put money in the bank. After a few years of milking he bought the farm he was working and paid half cash. The mortgage cannot last long in the face of a prospering dairy business.

The average farmer of the middle west doesn't like to think of farming anything less than a quarter section. An eighty or a forty he considers rather "small business." Nevertheless there are many advantages in the smaller farms. The hired help problem is solved, for the owner can do all the work himself. It is much easier for a man with limited capital to buy a small farm, and the cost of stocking and equipping is less.

C. H. Beadle of Nebraska is one of the corn belt farmers who is making a living on forty acres of land. His average net income is $800 a year. He has a very comfortable house. To rent such a house in the city and live as well there as he and his family do on the farm would cost him $1,500 a year. Considered in that light, his little farm is really paying him a salary of $2,300 a year.

In the east the greatest opportunities are in truck farming. Only a few acres are required, and the returns are large. A certain truck farmer in the vicinity of Boston is making a small fortune on ten acres of ground. He has intensive cultivation down to a science. No sooner is one plant taken from the soil than another is ready to take its place. He has part of his truck farm under glass, so that he can grow crops in winter as well as in summer. Last year his net profits were $1,000 per acre.

SECRETARY BALLINGER DENIES THAT SENATOR CRANE SOUGHT RESIGNATION.

COPYRIGHT 1910 BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Richard A. Ballinger positively denies that he is to resign as Secretary of the Interior and declares that Senator Murray Crane did not even discuss such a plan at their recent meeting at Minneapolis. There have been a great many reports recently to the effect that the Seattle lawyer and former commissioner of the general land office is a burden to the administration and for that reason would give up his portfolio, but these have been as often denied by the President and Mr. Ballinger.

Thursday—Davidson at Leisenring; Bitner at Lemont.

Two good games were again played in the Central Frick League last evening. Morgan crawled into the first division, passing Trotter, by defeating Lemont 7 to 6. Bitner and Bute battled to a seven inning tie. Both teams played splendid ball. The Morgan team has not yet been defeated since it took Youngstown's place in the league The boys passed through Connellsville last evening in high glee. They are elated over their showing. However, the defeat reflected no discredit upon the Lemont boys, who played splendid ball and deserved to win.

The Bitner-Bute game was exciting. There is intense rivalry between these two nines. Bitner has as yet failed to win a game, but the team is improving right along. It now has to its credit tie games with Trotter and Bute.

The Morgan Lemont Game.

LEMONT, Aug. 5.—The Morgan team beat the Lemont team in a slugging match of which the Morgan team had a shade the better of the Lemont hickory wielders. All three pitchers were touched up lively. Morgan hammered Lemont's first flinger out of the box and commenced on their second pill heaver with zest. Klingelsmith, for Morgan, was also touched up in a lively manner. He was very wild and erratic at times. Thomas, for Morgan, pounded the pill for three safeties in the four times he was at bat. Robbins hammered the leather out for three bases in the seventh, and scored the winning run on a wild throw on a Lemont player trying to nail him at the third station on his fake attempt to steal home. The first two men up for Morgan banged the horsehide for two bases.

The feature of the game was the batting of Thomas and B. Prucy, and "Noodles" Haley's pretty attempt to catch a long fly to center, he breking clear back against the school house and leaping in the air just touched the sphere with his bare hand and deflected its course. His fast return of the ball saved Morgan from having several runs chalked up against them.

There was some spectacular fielding by both teams. The batting and the work of Thomas at second caused everybody to take notice. After seven innings pounding of the horsehide the Morgan boys were found to be one run to the good, 7 to 6.

Bitner, 4; Bute, 4.

Bitner went to Bute last evening and played seven innings to no decision. The game was clean and fast. Darkness prevented the game from going a longer distance. Bitner took the lead, scoring the first runs of the contest in the second inning. Two runs slipped across the platter, much to the anxiety of the Bute boys. Bute could do nothing in its half of the third and Bitner was held safe in the fourth. In the latter half of this session Bute had a batting rally and scored three runs. Both teams scored once in the fifth, giving Bute a 4 to 3 lead. Good offensive play on the part of Bitner tied the score in the sixth. That ended the scoring for both teams.

Both Hines and Bell pitched splendid ball, neither giving a base on balls. Hines let Rutter go to first in one inning by hitting him with a pitched ball, but this was the only free pass. Hines fanned six Bitner players while Bell mowed down seven of his opponents by the whiff route.

Bute had the better of the argument with the stick but offset this by poorer work in the field. Haas at short was the chief offender, the peppery little shortstop having two misplays. N. Becker and Means were again the fielding aces for Bitner but Mickey gathered in the batting honors by cracking out a pair of doubles at critical stages. The score:

Frick League Notes.

There are four tie games to be played off in the league to date. The tie dates for these are to be fixed by the two managers but the President of the league should be notified in ample time to provide umpires. The tie games so far are Morgan at Trotter; Lemont at Bute, Trotter at Bitner and Biner at Bute. The cause of these ties is principally the fact that darkness sets in before a decision can be reached. Bitner and Trotter have two tie games to play off while Lemont, Bute and Morgan each have one. When these games are played there may be a difference in the club standing.

Morgan is going at a fast clip. The heavy hitting this team does is going to make many pitchers feel uncomfortable before the season ends. The Morgan boys are now in first division, crowding Trotter down into the second half by defeating Lemont last night.

Davidson and Monarch are tied for end place. The positions will likely second place. The positions will likely change after Monday's game between Trotter and Davidson.

Severn teams could improve their attack by more heady work on the offensive. Instead of letting the batter whale away at everything that comes over the pan it would be a good scheme to let them walk it out. Many a pitcher is now getting away with game after game when he would probably weaken and blow up if more intelligent hitting was practised.

Some of the players are already anxious to know their official batting average. The averages will be compiled after the season has been half completed. That means when the teams have played seven games.

Mickey of Bitner is shining as a swat star Yesterday he had two doubles to his credit. Hines, Darr and English of the Bute team had hits for extra bases, the later two swatting the ball for three pillows.

Means wasn't there with his stick yesterday Hines and the talkative gentleman on his wagon. Means has infected a whole lot of ginger into the team behind him, however, and instead of being the easiest proposition in the circuit Bitner is now one of the hardest to wallop.

Haas had two errors yesterday but he also had eight chances, all of them hard. Haas covers more ground than any shortstop in the league and he doesn't think of his fielding average when he sees a hard chance coming his way. That boy is chuck full of pep tee.

J. Decker has found himself at first base. He is playing a swell fielding game there for Bitner.

Johnson has been out of the game for Bute since he collided with Haas at Monarch two weeks ago and lost two teeth. He was a promising youngster.

Boyle has strengthened Bute behind the bat. His stickwork cuts a big figure in the games, too. English has been shifted to first base and is playing a star game there.

A remarkable feature of the Frick League games is the control shown by the pitchers. It is rare for a twirler to give more than one or two passes in a game. Of course some batters help the pitchers out by swinging at most everything that comes up.

A post season series is already being arranged by the Car Shops team of Everson against the pennant winners in the Central Frick League. The home games for Car Shops will be played at Ellsworth Park, Scottdale. It is a safe bet that the Car Shops will have to go some to win the series for real baseball is being played in the Central league these days. At that the Everson boys are putting up a swell article of baseball.

The Car Shops will meet the fast Central team from Tarr Saturday. Central is playing great ball in the Northern Frick League and the game should be a good one.

Morgan has given notice that it intends to make a bid for the Central Frick League peanant. The boys are yet the undefeated but the season is young. Seven other teams have something to say about the matter.

Game at Everson.

The Saturday ball game on the Liyengood grounds at Everson will be at 1 o'clock. The H. C. Frick Car Shops team and the Central team of the Northern Frick League will meet. The batteries are: Shops, Horne and Malik; Central, Murdock and Mottle. A good, lively game is looked for.

K. OF C. GAME

At Scottdale Was a Defeat for Connellsville Team.

The Knights of Columbus of town journeyed to Scottdale and met defeat at the hands of the K. of C. team of that place last evening. The game was more interesting than the score shows, as both teams supported the pitchers very poorly in the field. The feature of the game was the playing of Irwin in right for Connellsville and a catch by King at third for Scottdale. The score:

March 21, 1910, Mrs. J. C. Ketcham, 4 Chester place, Bangor Me. wrote: "My husband J. G. Ketcham was troubled with dandruff which caused his hair to fall out, and your Parisian Sage has freed the scalp from dandruff and given a natural gloss to the hair. No money could persuade him to be without it."
